

I think this is a really bad idea. The potential for interference is too great. As an amateur radio operator, I am even more worried about the potential interference with this form of communication service that is proven in emergency situations when other forms of communications such as phones and cellular have failed. If BPL is implemented and causes interference with amateur radio operations, this could be disastrous.